

Executive Master in Governance & Development Policy

COURSE DESCRIPTION

1. Introduction

In a constantly changing world, development has become one of the major issues of the 21st century. This is why we believe that a specialised course must be devoted to it. The programme's overall aims to study development issues from the points of view of both the emerging countries and industrialised societies. The Executive Master in Governance & Development Policy tackles topics of growing importance, such as the impact of climate change, energy or migration issues on development.

Climate change summits are introducing new global development issues. The economic development of emerging countries and the growing shortage of traditional energy resources call for a reappraisal of the development models of industrialised countries. Economic "globalisation" is followed by increased awareness of the globalisation of environmental issues and sustainable development. In addition to this, the failure of the current model of international aid applied to sub-Saharan Africa and the challenge of IMF monetary policies casts doubt on the western vision of development which has been imposed on these regions. Therefore a study of various development models according to geographical criteria is a crucial key to understanding these issues.

2. Curriculum

The aim of the Executive Master in Governance & Development Policy is the acquisition of a practical, critical and holistic understanding of development issues by taking an interdisciplinary approach enhanced by a comparative analysis of the various development models. This programme includes 10 thematic and geographical modules and is organised into two parts. The first semester, focuses on the "Foundation" is made up of five thematic modules entitled: "Economics of Development", "Political governance", "Economic Resources & Development (including Energy)", "Environment and development", and "Population Growth, disparities & Migration". The second semester is dedicated to "Development experiences" according to geographical zones such as "Russia and Central Asia: beyond transition", "Middle East & North Africa", "South and East Asia: the new epicentre of Global Economy", "Latin America: making up for lost time" and "Sub-Saharan Africa: from basket case to Development". Each module ends with a specific seminar.

The program is designed for professionals who would like to acquire specific skills and knowledge which will help them get a comprehensive understanding of development and governance issues. This objective is pursued through lectures, discussions and self-study from the reading & online materials available. The course is made up of 60 credits ECTS: 30 credits for class attendance and online courses + 30 credits for student workload, learning outcomes and contact hours.

The classes are conducted in English and held in Brussels on Saturday afternoons (from 2:00 pm to 6:00 pm). In addition to the 4 hours/week delivered in the auditorium, the classes are complemented by online courses (e-learning courses) that count for at least 4 hours/week. The recordings of the live courses, as well as the recordings of the online courses are available on the e-learning platform (see e-community).

2.1. The Faculty

The high quality of the programme depends above all on its participating faculty. CERIS has developed an extensive network of contacts with renowned scholars drawn from leading academic and research institutions and with key experts from international organisations. This pooling of resources provides a high-profile professorial corps which few institutions could provide on their own. Every year, the programme is supported by thirty experts from such academic institutions as the London School of Economics and Political Science, the School of Oriental & African Studies, the Universities of Oxford, Cambridge, Warwick, the Institute of Social Studies - The Hague, Erasmus University Rotterdam, the Graduate institute of International and Development studies of Geneva.

Among those who are lecturing at CERIS for a number of years, we are able to name:

Howard Nicholas (Erasmus University - Rotterdam, ISS – Den Haag) - David Sogge (Harvard & Princeton Universities, Transnational Institute – Amsterdam) - Medhi Shafaeddin (Former Head, Macroeconomics and Development Policy branch UNCTAD; University of Neuchâtel) - Mushtaq Khan (School of Oriental & African Studies – SOAS, London) - Alexander Fischer (School of Oriental & African Studies – SOAS, London) - Simona Vittorini (School of Oriental & African Studies – SOAS, London) - Amelia Hadfield (University of Kent) - Flavio Valente (General Secretary of Foodfirst Information & Action Network - Heidelberg) - Peter Mollinga (School of Oriental & African Studies – SOAS, London) - Andrew Fischer (Erasmus University - Rotterdam, ISS - Den Haag) - Theodore Trefon (Royal Museum for Central Africa - Tervueren) - Murat Arsel (Erasmus University - Rotterdam, ISS – Den Haag) - Robert Falkner (London School of Economics & Political Science - LSE) - Neil Robinson (University of Limerick) - Anastasia Nesvetailova (CITY, University of London) - Daniela Gabor (University of Western England - UWE - Business school) - David Cobham (University of Edinburgh) - Hassan Hakimian (School of Oriental & African Studies – SOAS, London) - Matthew McCartney (Oxford University) - Anne Booth (School of Oriental & African Studies – SOAS, London) - Peter Ferdinand (University of Warwick) - Stephanie Blankenburg (School of Oriental & African Studies – SOAS, London) - Afredo Saad-Filho (School of Oriental & African Studies – SOAS, London) - Elliot Green (London School of Economics & Political Science - LSE) - Daniel Large (School of Oriental & African Studies - SOAS, Central European University - Budapest) - Richard Caplan (Oxford university, Linacre College).

Fall-Winter Term – FOUNDATIONS

Module 1 Economics of development

Economic Globalization & Development
The Governance & the Global Economy
Multilateral and bilateral aid
International trading system
International financial system
Introduction to the Geoeconomy

Seminar 1 : Questioning the models of International aid

Module 2 Political governance

Law and Governance in the Developing world
Theory and practice of political development
Clientelism & Corruption in Developing Countries
State building, democracy building and electoral management.
The development challenges of poverty, inequality and insecurity

Seminar 1 : Democracy Building & Good Governance

Module 3 Primary Resources & Development

Geopolitics of energy
Water and Development
Food Security
Mineral resources

Seminar 3 : Land Grabbing & Land Concentration

Module 4 Environment and development

Natural Resource Governance & Development
Global Climate Change & Environment Policy
Climate change and its impact on development

Seminar 4 : Sustainable Development

Module 5 Population Growth, disparities and Migration

International & Regional migrations
Migration & International Law
Refugees & Human rights protection
Poverty, inequality
The EU & Migrant Crisis

Seminar 5 : Development Strategies in Comparative Perspective

Winter-Spring Term - DEVELOPMENT EXPERIENCES

Module 6 Russia and Central Asia: beyond transition

Russia: the Petrostate & the global crisis.

Putinism & political economy of Russia

Political Economy of Central Asia

Central Asia in Global Politics

Seminar 6 : Central Asia: Resources, Environment & Development

Module 7 Middle East & North Africa : Islam, oil and economic development

Oil and economic development : a political economy approach

The political economy of Middle East Development

Seminar 7 : Arab Uprising, Islam, Terrorism & Development

Module 8 South and East Asia: the new epicentre of the global economy?

How and in which way did these economies grow so fast and what are the lessons?

The State & the market: lessons from India – India's economic Success.

Will China's economic success continue and will it become the dominant world economic power?

Trade and Development : South & East Asia Experience

Four Asian Tiger & Economies of the Tiger Clubs

Seminar 8 : Economic Cooperation & Development in Asia

Module 9 Latin America: making up for lost time

The changing political economy of Latin America Development

The political economy of Brazilian Development

Regional Integration in LAC

Latin America & China

Seminar 9 : Latin America & Caribbean Environment & Development

Module 10 Sub – Saharan Africa: from basket case to Development?

The flowering of sub-Saharan African economies

Africa's Socio-Economic performance & Prospects

Making (some) sense of China-Africa Relations

Autopsy of a failed State : the Case of RDC

Seminar 10 : African Development Challenges & Growth Opportunities

3. Teaching system

The program, based on empirical methods, aims to relate conceptual and theoretical frameworks to the contemporary realities of development policy and policies. This objective is pursued through lectures, discussions, seminars in small groups, presentations by participants and self-study from the reading and on-line materials available.

Lectures are delivered in English. Lectures are always followed by a discussion with the guest speaker. Seminars complement the lectures, providing course participants with an opportunity to discuss the critical issues presented in the lectures. In addition optional visits or are organised during the year.

Self study is vital to this course. The modules are supported by two volumes of Background Readings and by Audio/Video Recordings downloadable from the Moodle e-learning platform (e-community). The textbooks consist of a selection of recent and authoritative academic publications on the topics and a bibliography which is updated every year. The textbooks are no longer printed but are downloadable from the e-campus or e-community. Participants are provided with the textbooks to pursue a more in-depth study in preparation for the end of course oral exam.

The e-community is an essential teaching tool. Here, participants can download the course outlines & handouts prepared by the lecturers, the Proceedings (or course synopses) and Background reading or indeed any other printed document. Access to audio/video recordings of the lectures forms a crucial part of the course materials. In addition, participants have access to a virtual library for research purposes and coursework. Finally, participants are also invited to visit the CERIS Facebook or YouTube page¹, where they will find interviews with the lecturers on issues of related interest for the MA course and which aim to stimulate interaction with the course participants.

3.1. The Certificate & International Audience

The Executive Masters (60 Credits) are issued by CERIS & the Université libre de Bruxelles - ULB and are agreed by ARES (Académie de Recherche et d'Enseignement Supérieur) which is the federation of French-speaking higher education institutions in Belgium. Participants should be aware that this certificate is not the equivalent of a Bologna-type Master degree (120 credits).

CERIS or the "CERIS-ULB Diplomatic School of Brussels" is an English-language international school based in the Brussels-Capital Region. Our education is a non-subsidized private education. Our teaching is geared towards globalization. Indeed, it is dispensed on 4 continents in more than 30 countries around the world. The rate of integration in the fields of international relations conferred by our certificates is very high. Our school and our certificates enjoy a high reputation. Most of our teachers come from the top 10 of the best universities in the world. Major international institutions finance the training of their staff in our institution and promotions within some of them are obtained on the basis of our certificates.

¹ <http://www.facebook.com/eLearningCERIS>

In addition to the privileged partnership with the "Université Libre de Bruxelles" - ULB, CERIS has developed partnerships with universities such as the "Graduate Institute of International and Development Studies" of Geneva, International Institutions such as the "Inter-University Council for East Africa" and research centers such as the "Center d'Etudes des Crises et des Conflits Internationaux - CECRI". Our teaching is largely focused on the Anglo-Saxon, Commonwealth, Asia-Pacific countries as well as on the Americas or Africa, and is aimed mostly at English-speaking participants.

4. How to qualify

In order to qualify for the Executive master in Governance & Development policy successfully, participants are required to participate in all 10 teaching modules of the programme (30 ECTS), write two Seminar essays, produce a dissertation or Master thesis and pass an oral examination (30 ECTS).

The Seminar essay is a dissertation of 3,000 words. Participants are expected to react from their own perspective and to discuss one of the issues presented during the seminars.

The Master thesis is a piece of work that all course participants have to produce in order to qualify for the Executive Master in Governance and Development Policy. The thesis can be written in either English or French. It should address a specific question related to development policy issues and an initial proposal must be submitted by each student to the academic supervisor for approval. The thesis should have the form and style of a scientific article.

It should demonstrate that it has taken into account most of the existing work on the subject and make a contribution to the knowledge in the area. Its length should be around 15.000 and 20.000 words. Each participant will be assigned a supervisor and will be expected to be in regular contact with the latter during his or her research. Once submitted, the thesis will be assessed by the supervisor and at least one external examiner. CERIS reserves the right to publish the outstanding dissertations on its website (www.ceris.be).

The Final examination is an oral assessment of the candidate's understanding of governance & development policy issues. Candidates sit the "major oral" in English or in French, in front of a panel of at least two professors. They are asked questions on their thesis as well as any current issue in development policy and are required to demonstrate their understanding of the deeper causes of current problems and their capacity to analyse complex issues.

The exams are organized during the last week of June and October. If this opportunity is not used, it is still possible to sit the exam in late January, late June or late October of the following academic year.

A re enrolment fee of 2000 € will be charged for re-registration. However, in case of non consecutive re registration (if the re registration occurs after an interruption of more than one year) the fee will be of € 2.500. No one may sit the same examination more than twice.

The final grade is calculated as follows: 40% of marks for the thesis - 40% of marks for the oral examination - 20% of marks for the seminar essays.

A combined average mark of more than 55% is required for the certificate to be awarded. The grading system is as follows: Satisfecit (55-64), Cum Laude (65-74); Magna Cum Laude (75-84); Summa Cum Laude (85 or more).

5. Admission and fees

Prospective applicants must hold a relevant university degree and several years of professional experience. As a matter of principle, admission requires either a Bologna master's degree or an equivalent diploma delivered after four years of university studies (240 ECTS). A bachelor's degree might be accepted, if combined with a relevant professional background. In addition, applicants should demonstrate an excellent command of English.

Given the large number of annual applications, only candidates fulfilling these criteria will be considered. Interested candidates are required to submit the application form, along with copies of their university degrees and detailed curriculum vitae, to the CERIS main office in Brussels. An electronic version should be sent by e-mail to info@ceris.be

There are two intakes a year:

October intake: Most participants attend the programme from October to May; closing date for applications is October 31. February intake: It is also possible to attend the course from February to January; the closing date for applications is 28 February. Participants are nonetheless encouraged to apply early, as only a limited number are accepted each academic year.

The tuition fees for attending the programme are € 4.500 for the whole course. There are no additional costs. Fees are payable installmentally. A first instalment of € 2.000, called booking fees, needs to be paid after receipt of the admission letter. Booking fees are part of the tuition fees. The fees' balance ought to be paid at the latest, by December 1st (October intake) or May 1st (February intake). Please note that CERIS doesn't offer scholarships or fee waivers. A discount is offered to groups of at least 3 applicants working in the same organization or company. Prospective candidates might also benefit from an "early birds rate", if applications are submitted before August 31st (October intake) or December 31st (February intake). Discounts are not cumulative. Future tuition rate is subject to change and CERIS reserves the right to determine tuition rate differential between EU residents and non-EU residents status.

5.1. Cancellation policy.

Once you confirm your registration for the October or February intake, a deposit of € 2.000 is required. The deposit is non refundable / non transferable.

In case of visa refusal, the applicant has the possibility to re apply for the following academic term or to shift to the distance learning program. Payment of fees' balance will be required prior to the activation of e-learning facilities.

6. Online study : Online access to course facilities

The Executive master in Governance & Development Policy may be taken entirely online. Using a personal login, participants have access to the courses through the Moodle e-learning platform (e-Community)². The e-community is the essential teaching tool for online participants. Here, they can download the course outlines & handouts prepared by the lecturers, the Proceedings (or course synopses) and Background reading or indeed any other printed document. Access to audio/video recordings of the lectures forms a crucial part of the course materials. In addition, it enables to use a virtual library for research purposes and coursework.

Online participants are assisted by an academic tutor who provides them with the teaching framework and necessary guidance. They keep in regular contact by e-mail or by Skype. In addition, a thesis supervisor will be assigned according to the candidate's research project.

Online participants are not necessarily bound by the October/February intake. It is possible to start the program the first working day of every month (except in July or in August). Payment of the fees is requested prior to the activation of the access code to the e-campus.

Distance-learning Programme:

To be awarded the Executive Master in Governance & development policy, the online course participants are required to write two seminar essays, produce an original dissertation or Master thesis on a subject of their choice, previously approved by the core faculty and pass an oral examination. Online participants will take the oral exam by using the facilities of a computer assisted video conference, without having to travel to Brussels (Skype system).

Additional Information

CERIS (www.CERIS.be)

44 Avenue Jeanne, B-1050 Brussels

Email : info@CERIS.be

Phone: +32 (0)2 537 40 75

² <http://www.ceris.be/moodle/>